	In view of the objections from your archaeological and environment officers and the damngng report from Historic England, I urge you to reject this application. The wanton destruction of the orchard is particularly worrying. In an age when we should be aware that putting ecology at risk is to put the planet at risk, the loss of an area rich in bio-diversity is not acceptable. Both myself and my husband, Dr Andrew Swift, have written about the history of Trowbridge, and I am appalled that it can be disregarded in such a cavalier fashion.
