Comments:	Dear Sir I understand the need for housing, however, can not this unique land be saved for the children and local wildlife. There has been an enormous decline in beekeeping, this would be a bees paradise and the keepers could teach adults and children the important reason for bees, and this would, of course, encourage wild birds. The children of today need to be able to revisit this type of sites, not funfairs and markets. If correctly managed, we could see a good school teaching country ways and charging visitors old for English festivals. 1 visiting the house 2 Beekeeping 3 when and how to prune fruit trees 4 looking for pests 5 producing and selling fruit products 6 producing and selling honey Can we please keep out traditions for Children
