Comments:	The large village of Burbage, with around 2000 inhabitants would very much prefer the Three Horseshoes to remain as a pub, rather than a Development Company changing the use of the building for their personal gain. This pub has stood at Stibbs Green for at least a century, and many hope that this asset will continue. Despite Wadworth Brewery failing to advertise the sale of this property, the pub could have been bought as a going concern. I am absolutely certain that with some investment,(which Wadworth's have failed to make for many years), and with professional management, the pub could be commercially viable. The long term ramifications of losing a pub are very damaging for a community, and we hope that such an important amenity isn't destroyed without very serious consideration.
