Comments	I would strongly object to the change of use. The White Hart is currently on the Market with adhoc opening hours and no food. The village needs a pub that provides food. With the correct management it could be a thriving business in a lovely location. It would be a shame for another community asset to be lost to housing. The village has just had a new estate built which further increases the need for community spaces. With public transport for rural locations decreasing and taxi availability poor in the village along with the need to stop people drink driving surely keeping this as a pub would be a more viable option. Their argument about the decrease in trade doesn't hold any weight. As soon as the previous tenants left the pub was closed despite assurances from Wadworths that it was going to be sold as a going concern. It wasn't advertised on the open market as they already had a buyer in place.
